NAFCU's JUNE 17 WEBCAST WILL DETAIL THE COSTS AND BEST PRACTICES OF HANDLING CYBER FRAUD
Deadline for Early Registration Savings June 10

WASHINGTON – The National Association of Federal Credit Unions (NAFCU) will explore the repercussions of online fraud in its next webcast, “The True Cost of Cyber Insecurity: Phishing and Data Breach Attacks.” The session will broadcast live from NAFCU’s headquarters on June 17 from 2-3:30 p.m. EDT. The deadline for early registration savings is June 10.

NAFCU members and non-members can register at www.nafcu.org/june17webcast or call 800-344-5580.

“With online fraud expected to cost credit unions millions of dollars in the coming years, credit unions need to be prepared to meet the challenges of breach management,” said NAFCU President Fred Becker. “It’s crucial that they anticipate the costs involved and have a plan in place to safeguard their institution’s reputation. The phishing and data breach response experts in this webcast will arm participants with the information needed to aid in the planning of their credit unions’ specific business model or support process.”

The webcast’s speakers include James Brooks, director of product management for the internet security firm Cyveillance, Inc., and Tom Rusin, president and CEO of the North American Division of Affinion Group, which specializes in affinity marketing. Brooks will present a cost analysis from over six years of data collection on phishing detection and site takedown efforts for credit unions of all sizes. Rusin will detail the best practices for data breach pre-planning and preparation, and provide an in-depth look at the resources needed for breach management.

NAFCU is the only national organization that focuses exclusively on federal issues affecting credit unions, representing its members before the federal government and the public.
